

SOMATIC TRAUMA THERAPY 12 DAY PROFESSIONAL TRAINING WITH BABETTE ROTHSCHILD 2021 -2022 (14)

THIS TRAINING embraces three major goals: First, to make a relevant bridge between trauma theory and trauma practice; Second, to make non-touch somatic tools available to the trauma practitioner; Third, to equip therapists to distinguish and help clients who 1) are not good candidates for processing trauma memories and 2) those who are good candidates for processing memories. These goals underlie the principles addressed in both The Body Remembers, Volumes 1 and 2, putting into direct practice the principles, theory, and tools presented in those books as well as many others.

This training is grounded in the belief that the therapist working with trauma, must become familiar with many theories, techniques, and treatment models to ensure that therapy will always be tailored to the needs of the individual client. Therefore, it is designed to enhance, not replace, skills and knowledge already held by the professional participants. In the past, practitioners from many disciplines -- psychoanalysis, psychodynamic, EMDR, cognitive behavioural, mindfulness, hypnosis, gestalt, body psychotherapy, TA, among others -- have all found this training to be a complement not a conflict.

Workshop modules will be conducted online with a combination of lecture, discussion, films, exercises, video and demonstrations, role-played therapy practices and client consultations. Relevant handouts supplementing the required texts will be provided as well as a Certificate of Completion. The aim is to replicate the previously offered in-person 12 day training as closely as possible including plenty of interaction. Babette will be teaching with assistants. The assistants will be present in practice sessions in the breakout groups and offer assistance throughout. Numbers will be limited to a maximum of 24.

A second year for those wishing to become certified in Somatic Trauma Therapy is available by application. Please discuss the details of this with Babette during the 12 day course. It is organised directly by Babette.

COURSE CONTENT:

Reducing risks of trauma therapy, Pierre Janet's phase-oriented treatment structure and distinguishing trauma recovery from trauma memory resolution provide the foundations of the entire training. The importance of making and learning from mistakes is always emphasized facilitating a safer and more supportive learning environment. Each 4-day module builds on the previous one, for continuity of knowledge and skills.

Part 1: Focuses on Stabilization and Safety. Theoretical material includes: treatment planning, psychology of stress and trauma - including the role of dissociation; physiology of stress and trauma - including how to facilitate clear thinking and integration; both autonomic and sensory nervous system branches will be detailed and applied to principles for stabilization; defining types of trauma clients; "putting on the brakes" for containment, and safety, applications of mindfulness, and regulating hyperarousal. Experience with basic body awareness, mindfulness, muscle toning, boundaries, and the use of resources will provide the basis for direct practice during this module.

Part 2: Peter Levine's SIBAM model is featured as a multifaceted tool that can be used to enhance stabilization as well as to increase association and resolution of trauma memories. The model will be taught in steps culminating in practice sessions with role-played clients. Addressing issues of self-care, including avoiding risks of vicarious trauma and compassion fatigue, and learning to consciously adjust resonance and empathy will round out these 4 days.

Part 3: The Bodydynamic "running technique" will be introduced as an imaginal, mind/body integrative procedure for reawakening the flight reflex and reducing hyperarousal. Graduated training in the model will make it accessible to therapists for their clients with applications in both Phase 1 and Phase 2. Participants will also be supervised in making relevant choices of techniques both during triad role-plays and during client consultation. Integration of both theoretical and practical material from all three workshops will be included, reinforcing the bridge between theory and practice, training and actual work place situations. Treatment planning will be further discussed and practiced.
